NAWB Honored with Global Davey Awards for Member Communications Tools

WASHINGTON, D.C. – With nearly 4,000 global entries, the Academy of Interactive and Visual Arts (AIVA) awarded the National Association of Workforce Boards (NAWB) two Davey’s for its innovative communications tools for its members. The Davey Awards is judged and overseen by the AIVA, a 700+ member organization of leading professionals from various disciplines of the visual arts dedicated to embracing progress and the evolving nature of traditional and interactive media. Current membership represents a "Who's Who" of acclaimed media, advertising, and marketing firms including Condé Nast, Disney, General Electric, Microsoft, Monster.com, MTV, and Yahoo! to name a few.

NAWB received two Silver Daveys for its 2017 annual report, and its 2017 program book for its signature annual Workforce Forum event held in Washington, D.C.

“We are so honored to accept these awards on behalf of our members who work diligently across the country to create innovations in workforce development,” said Ron Painter, chief executive officer of the NAWB. “The annual report is an important communications tool that showcases our association’s key initiatives on behalf of the 600+ workforce development boards that we represent.”

NAWB’s annual Workforce Forum convenes workforce, education, economic development and industry stakeholders across the country to solve complex workforce issues in America. The program book allows participants to quickly find sessions and workshops to engage in critical conversations, as well as the latest innovations and resources in the Forum’s exhibit hall.

“We thank our communications partner, Full Capacity Marketing, Inc who continues to collaborate with us to help bring our vision to fruition,” said Painter.
